

ACCESSING YOUR ONLINE BANK STATEMENTS

When applying for additional funding, submitting a bank statement as part of your application is essential. If you are registered for online banking, you should be able to easily and quickly access an electronic copy of your bank statement, in a format that can be easily included in your application pack.

Not all banks use the same process to download this information, so this can sometimes be confusing. To help make the process a little bit clearer, we have provided details and links on how to do this for a variety of banks below.

WHAT IS A BANK STATEMENT

A bank statement is a full list of all transactions in that account, showing all funds going and out over the period of time it covers, which is usually one month. There is normally a summary page which includes an overview of the account balance, and details of the account holder. A bank statement is a formal document. Lists of transactions from a mobile banking app are not the same as a formal bank statement.

It is likely that your bank send you a copy of your statement each month, usually through your online account or mobile app. It is usually also possible to generate a statement from your online account that covers a specific period of time.

WHAT INFORMATION IS NEEDED

We need you to submit bank statements for each household account, even if it is for an account you don't use. These statements should cover at least two months' worth of transactions and should be recent.

You should also think about any information that you want us to see in your bank statement. If you are using this to provide evidence of a particular expense, make sure it covers the period that shows this evidence. You may wish to add notes to your bank statement to explain transactions or draw our attention to detail that you feel is important, but you should not delete or obscure any of the detail.

ONLINE BANKING VERSUS MOBILE BANKING APP

While mobile banking apps are a great way to keep a close eye on your bank accounts and your spending, they might not offer the full range of services that will allow you to access your bank statements. This means that you might have to access your online banking through a webpage, instead of through your mobile app.

Most mobile banking apps allow you to access the messages your bank send you. Look for an inbox. In this inbox, you may find that your bank sends you monthly statements that can easily be downloaded as PDF documents, which is what is required when applying for additional funds.

Remember, we need a copy of your bank statement, which is a formal document. We cannot accept screenshots of transactions on your mobile banking app.
